

More likely than not, the church you envision today is not the church of your youth. Today, places of worship are the family “third space” - the location in which they spend a significant amount of time beyond their home and workplace/school. As such, there are important design factors that have far-reaching effects on the quality of spiritual fulfillment as well as the bottom line.

