Experience that Matters

Since its inception, Omni Architects has planned and designed some of the most transformative worship spaces in Kentucky, creating places where people naturally connect with their higher being and with each other. This is the foundation upon which places of worship are designed, so we work with our clients to create spaces where community and connection can take place in a comfortable and inviting atmosphere.

The clear connection of a church's facilities with its culture, ministry, and leadership creates an inspiring environment within a congregation. The facilities should clearly communicate the unique personality of the institution to members and visitors alike. Because each ministry has its own unique DNA and each fellowship holds unique aifts, no two buildings are the same.

As with all things related to a ministry, the church's vision should be the driving force when it comes to its facilities. Buildings are simply tools to be used in the pursuit of the ministry's vision. When embarking on a building project, new or renovation, the vision becomes the guide against which all design decisions are measured.

From leadership and worship teams, to youth and music programs, each division of the church should be engaged in the visioning process. By taking a deep look at who you are as a mission and working through your growing pains, you have the opportunity to refine your vision, stretch your faith, and open your eyes to new ministry possibilities.

Omni Architects offers this guide as a preview of our experience and as a reference for your planning exercises

